HOOVER ASKS UNITY IN WORK ON ECONOMY

AIMS AT NON-PARTISANISM

Only Effective Way, He Declares; Democrat Voices Criticism.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 4—In a surprise special message to congress, President Hoover today called for the appointment of delegates from both the senate and house to work with him in framing "a complete national program of economy."

The President declared further reductions of federal expenditures for the next year to be an absolute necessity.

He asserted, however that various agencies in congress working toward this end lacked the necessary unity of action

"Therefore," he continued "I recommend to the congress that in order to secure this unity of effort and prompt action, and thus insure the relief of the taxpayer and a balanced budget, at the same time protecting vital service of the government, that representatives be delegated by the two houses, who together with representatives of the executive, should be authorized to frame for action by the present congress a complete national program of economy and to recommend the legislation necessary to make it possible and effective

"Such a course would expedite rather than delay the passage of appropriations bills.

The President asserted he was convinced that "only by such unified, non-partisan efforts" and by a willingness "to share the difficulties and problems," could federal expenditures be properly curtailed. Mr. Hoover said the "limit of executive authority to bring about economies has been reached," and that only by an amendment of existing laws, eliminating less necessary functions, and consolidating gov-

Five Thousand Miners Refuse To Report for Work Today.

2,500 PICKETS ON GUARD

No Disorders Reported; Three O. N. G. Observers in Belmont County.

By The Associated Press

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., April 4—The statewide bituminous coal mine strike, called by the United Mine Workers of America for April 1 apparently was successful in eastern Ohio, when approximately 5,000 men refused to report for work today

Although the strike had been called for Friday, it was impossible to determine its effect as that day was a miners' holiday and many of the diggers were expected to extend the vacation over the week-end.

Only four mines in the large eastern field were working today

All of the operations in the district were prepared to open today and scores of workers appeared but they were turned back by a crowd of approximately 2,500 pickets, led by a band The pickets visited every mine in the district, but there was no disorder.

Officials of the Hanna Coal Co., one of the largest operators in the field, announced today that the company would make no further effort to operate.

PHILIPPINE ISSUE UP FOR DECISION

Independence Question, Argued 30 Years, Is Before House Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 4—Granting independence to the Philippines, a question of 30 years standing, came up today in the house

Regarding legislation to free the islands after a term of years, subject to fulfillment of stated requirements, as a non-partisan question, Speaker Garner concluded it should be acted on without delay, and the opposition was warned that drastic procedure would be invoked if necessary

The measure before the house, sponsored by Chairman Hare, Democrat of South Carolina, provides for independence at the end of eight years of privisional government, but requires that the Filipino people shall draft a constitution acceptable to the President of the United States, who on approving it shall free the islands by proclamation. The Filipinos would enjoy autonomy on domestic affairs pending independence but island exports would be limited by quotas proportioned to American investments in the islands, and immigration also would be quota-limited to 50 a year. American right to military and naval bases on the islands would be reserved

FOUR DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

Craft Wrecked as Snowstorm Blinds Pilot Near Duluth, Minn.

By The Associated Press

DULUTH, Minn April 4—Four men on their way to Detroit to compete in the national aircraft show were killed this morning in an airplane crash 25 miles north of Duluth

Those killed were (Dutch) Herb Fuller 28 pilot, H I Kersvinen, 35, aviator T J Somero 32 fur buyer and part owner of the plane, and his brother, William Somero, 28 They all lived at Ely, Minn

Fuller flew into a snowstorm near the farm home of John Fjerem, who heard the plane circle his home three times and then crash Fuller apparently was blinded by the snow on the windows of the cabin plane

The plane hit a snow fence, and all four were instantly killed, Fjerem reported

The motor was driven back into the cabin, crushing all four to death The plane did not catch fire Fuller and Kursvinen, released from an Ely hospital only a few days ago, still wore bandages because of injuries in a forced landing on March 27

If the plane had cleared the snow fence it would have landed in a large field.

CUTTYHUNK, Mass., April 4—Two Cuttyhunk fishermen today positively identified the pilot of a large amphibian plane which landed here yesterday in search of a yacht as Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. One of the men, Charles Tilton, said he had seen many pictures of Lindbergh and recognized him without question.

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL, N J, April 4 Col Charles A Lindbergh today became an active figure in the hunt for his stolen baby

His automobile with the colonel at the wheel slid into the garage at his Sourland hills estate shortly after midnight, ending a mysterious 24 hour trip which he and the state police declined to discuss

"We will answer no questions as to the whereabouts of any member of the Lindbergh family" was the way the state police put it

On a back road near the estate the Lindbergh car had met a machine carrying newspapermen, and stopped

"Are you police officers?" Col Lindbergh asked

The reporters identified themselves and asked him where he had been

"Thank you" Col Lindbergh replied and drove on to his home

Gone Since Saturday Night

The Associated Press had learned earlier that he left the estate by motor Saturday night Where he spent the 24-hour period, however, remained a secret

An amphibian landed at Gosnold island, near Martha's Vineyard, Mass, yesterday Three men—two described as elderly and one as young—disembarked and made inquiries concerning a boat they referred to as the "Sallie" No such boat had been seen in those waters, and after a two hour stopover, during which the men lunched they flew away One of the men was frequently addressed as "colonel" and one of the others as "doctor" Residents of the island said none of the men resembled Col Lindbergh

Curtis Also on Trip

Significance was attached to the plane's flight in view of the fact that John H Curtis, Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder and one of three Norfolk "intermediaries" acting in the kidnaping case, left Norfolk Saturday on a mission believed connected with the kidnaping. Neither of his two associates, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage and the Rev H Dobson-Peacock, would comment.

The possibility that Col Lindbergh himself may have been at Martha's Vineyard yesterday was not overlooked, though it was without confirmation

State police disclosed they are pursuing their search in the belief that Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., is still alive.

"The attitude of the police must be that the baby is alive and well until the contrary is proved," said Col H N Schwarzkopf, superintendent, "The police must persist

C., D. & M. Suit To Obtain Plot Taken to New Court

Efforts of the C. D. & M. Electric Co. to obtain title to a small tract of property owned by John P. Probst Saturday were transferred from the probate court to the common pleas court.

After dismissing its probate court proceedings, the company filed an action in the higher court for legal proceedings to obtain title of the disputed tract. It states that the property, located between the first alley east of State street and High street, and immediately south of Mill street, is needed for a new substation, switching station and other electrical equipment and apparatus used in furnishing electric service in Marion. The company and Probst have failed to agree on compensation for the tract, according to the petition.

Judge George B. Scofield has set April 9 at 9 a. m. for a hearing on the proceedings. W. P. Moloney is counsel for the electric company.

Appeals Case

Harry A. Ammann Saturday appealed an action against Edward L. Burris from the justice court of Montgomery township to the common pleas court. Judgment for $192.64 against Burris, allegedly due on a lease of 180 acres in Montgomery township, is sought by Ammann. The law firm of Patton & Wiedemann represent Ammann.

Company Files Answer

The Industrial Fire Insurance Co. has filed an answer in common pleas court in the action brought against it by William O. Mead to collect insurance following a fire. Property insured against fire loss became mortgaged after the policy was written, voiding the contract; Mead's interest in the property was not truly stated, title of the property changed after the policy was written without consent of the company, the company asserts in its answer. The law firms of Guthery, Seltz & Guthery of Marion and Mooney, Bibbee & Edmonds of Columbus represent the company.

"TOO MANY BOSSES" CLOSE SOVIET SHOP

Giant Automobile Project Halted; Resumption Planned April 15.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 4—The gigantic effort of the Soviets to "put every Russian peasant behind a steering wheel" was interrupted today by too many bosses.

Production of cars at the giant $119,000,000 automobile plant opened three months ago as Russia's challenge to Detroit has stopped.

"Too many fingers in the pie" was given as the cause, but the powerful executive committee of the Communist party demanded drastic reforms in the leadership of the workers at the plant so production may be resumed April 15.

"Anti-specialist tendencies" were also given as contributing factors to the difficulties.

The plant, built by American engineers, takes up 300,000 square yards and a new city was built around it to accommodate the thousands of workers.

The capacity was announced as 144,000 machines a year. It was supposed to produce only 700 up to April 1, but after that was expected to push toward a capacity basis.

Late Breakfast Is One Thing "King" Refuses To Stand For

By The Associated Press

WAUKEGAN, Ill., April 4—A flash of [illegible] switchboard of the telephone exchange was [illegible] groans when the operator said:

"Number please."

Receiving nothing but more groans the operator called John Hobart, night turnkey at the county jail and connected him with the [illegible] one of those six-party affairs. He too heard the groans.

Three deputies rushed from farm to farm looking for signs of an attempted killing but found none. At the sixth farm on the telephone line, in a small office building, they finally located the groans.

Smash went the door as the officers crashed against it, and "King" a big police dog, snapped out a hearty welcome.

"King," said F. O. Hutchins, his owner, in explanation, "was just letting the world know he wanted his breakfast and knocked the telephone over. Usually I let him out at 5 a. m., but I was an hour late this morning."

BANDIT BETRAYED BY JEALOUS GIRL

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 4—A debonair man of 30 whom a woman's jealousy placed in the hands of the police has erased "unsolved" from records of bank robberies in more than a dozen cities through a confession attributed to him by the police.

For a long time authorities of the middlewest and the west coast sought Donald Loftus, 30, as a dangerous robber. Yesterday he was apprehended in Mishawaka, Ind., 94 miles from Chicago because the authorities said, a jealous sweetheart tipped them of his whereabouts.

A hundred thousand dollars, he said, was the loot he obtained in 14 robberies extending from Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin to California between 1929 and 1931.

He robbed for funds to entertain women, three of whom he bigamously married, he said.

PUSH SEARCH FOR SLAYERS OF SEVEN

By The Associated Press

EL PASO, Tex., April 4—Officers considered a theory that boasts of imaginary wealth caused the massacre of seven members of the family of Malquiadio Espinosa as they pressed a search for the killers over the border country today. The seven victims were buried yesterday in one grave.

The 60-year-old Berino, N. M., dairyman and members of his household who survived the slaughter Friday night say his wife and six children were shot down when they were unable to comply with a demand of three robbers for $5,000.

Mrs. Luis Espinosa, widow of one of the victims, said the father, although he seldom drank, always imagined himself fabulously rich when intoxicated.

She expressed the opinion he might have claimed to have money concealed in his home and that the trio had heard of it.

ARMY DISCONTINUES AERIAL MANEUVERS

Criticism Causes Abandonment, Although Officials Answer Critics.

By International News Service

DAYTON, O., April 4—Criticized as an expensive aeronautical holiday and an "arrogant display of air strength," the army's annual aerial maneuvers are to be abandoned this spring.

Instead of a spectacular demonstration of the nation's army aerial [illegible] was staged last year, the war department has practically decided to hold only routine training flights at the various air corps stations.

The cause for the cancellation of the armada maneuvers, it was understood, was the flood of criticism heaped upon the war department following last year's aerial parade, during which nearly 700 of the nation's fighting planes were concentrated for battle maneuvers over Dayton and the eastern seaboard.

The fault-finding, which ranges from expense to danger and includes the protests of the pacifists, is largely based on error, officials say. They pointed out that last year's maneuvers in which 700 planes participated, flew 3,000,000 miles without a fatality.

And, as far as the expense item is concerned, officials said, the spectacular display is paid for out of the regular air corps appropriation and doesn't cost the taxpayers a cent.

But even though the army may be right, officials have decided not to lay themselves open to another cyclone of criticism. The army will do its flying on its home fields.

MAURICE CHEVALIER FILM OPENS TODAY AT PALACE THEATER

The crown prince of light comedy, Maurice Chevalier, stars in "One Hour With You," opened today at the Palace, to show through Thursday.

A supporting cast that fairly sparkles with beauty and wit, promises great things for this picture which was directed by that master of subtlety, Ernst Lubitsch.

Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Charlie Ruggles, Roland Young, George Barbier, Josephine Dunn, and Charles Judels all are familiar to theatergoers and all have prominent roles in "One Hour With You."

"One Hour With You" is the theme melody. Oscar Straus, no relation of the famous Johann Strauss, wrote "We Will Always Be Sweethearts," "What Would You Do," "What a Little Thing Like a Wedding Ring Can Do," "It Was Only a Dream Kiss," "Oh, That Mitzi" and "Three Times a Day," are other song hits of the picture.

"GOOD," IS VERDICT ON "ARROWSMITH," AT OHIO THEATER

"Arrowsmith," at the Ohio through Thursday, is a splendid picture. Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes give fine performances, with Richard Bennett and A. E. Anson giving stellar account of themselves. The story is done in convincing style.

Colman is a young scientist who marries a nurse, turns country doctor, and discovers a cattle serum that brings him recognition and a position with a great research foundation in New York. There he meets Anson, his former teacher and discovers a highly important serum-cure. His discovery is widely publicized and to prove its benefits he goes to the West Indies with Bennett, a famous plague-expert.

At the risk of their lives they prove the serum to be all it was claimed, but Bennett and Miss Hayes die of the plague, leaving Arrowsmith to go back alone. A triumphant reception awaits him, but he ignores it and goes, a broken man, to Anson, his old master. He is broken in mind and Colman, enraged at the price of science, walks out of the institute to devote the rest of his life obscurely to his work, far away from the shouters of the world. An organlogue and newsreel are on the bill. H. H.

Bill is the son and Bosworth the father. The action takes place in the lumber camp, with Kohler secretly plotting to displace Boyd as head of the camp. A cartoon comedy, newsreel and Chic Sale comedy complete the program.

95 Couples Attend Post-Easter Dance Given by Sorority

BLUE and white were the colors predominating in the decorative note carried out by Gamma Mu chapter, Delta Theta Tau sorority, for its post-Easter dance Saturday evening at Schwinger's. The lights were hung with blue and white shades and a miniature fence in the same colors formed an alcove for the orchestra. A curtain of gold cloth provided a background for the alcove and completed the decorations. About 95 couples danced to a program played by Richard's ensemble of Fostoria.

Miss Margaret Muntsinger acted as chairman of the decorative committee and Miss Myldrid Partridge served as head of the program committee.

First Known Trip

Col. Lindbergh's trip over Sunday was the first he has made from the estate, so far as is known, since his baby was stolen the night of March 1.

Rumors flew early today that the baby's nurse, Betty Gow, left the estate last night in a state police car. This gave rise to reports that she had been taken elsewhere for further questioning. There was no confirmation, however, of any of these reports. The police have stated repeatedly they are satisfied Miss Gow has told them all she knows.

Holds Conference at Scotland Yard

By The Associated Press

LONDON, April 4 — Major Charles H. Schoeffel of the New Jersey state police, who came here in connection with the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., visited Scotland Yard today and conferred with police officials there.

Major Schoeffel has been dubbed "mystery man" by a host of newspaper men who have vainly sought some trace of him since he landed in England.

Unrecognized by Crowd

He entered Scotland Yard unrecognized and when he emerged a half hour later he drove away in a taxicab still unidentified by a large crowd which had gathered outside.

The New Jersey trooper saw Lord Trenchard, the police commissioner, and the heads of the criminal investigation department while at the yard.

The authorities were obviously helping him maintain the secrecy with which he wished to surround his movements, and all they would say after the conference was:

"He has been in communication with the Yard but any information regarding the nature of the communication must come from the New Jersey state police."

Going to Glasgow

The plans of Major Schoeffel were not revealed but the general impression was that he intended to go to Glasgow, Scotland, and persons in close touch with the authorities admitted that there was "little doubt" that his visit was associated with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Entertain Class.

Mr. and Mrs. George Roseborough of Green Camp were hostesses to the members of the B Square class of the Grace Evangelical church at their home Saturday night. Guests were Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Married 1,600—Justice Hunts Wife for Self

By The Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., April 4 — Justice of the Peace Samuel Harrison, 79, is going to step out tomorrow night.

He has a "blind" date with a 22-year-old red-headed woman and there seems to be a good chance that he'll marry her.

The veteran justice, who has performed 1,600 marriages, recently announced he would be willing to take a chance on matrimony himself.

"She called me up," he said, "the voice sounded good and she agreed with me about how a wife should behave toward her husband. So I'm going to meet her tomorrow night and talk it over. She said she was 22 and a redhead."

CITY'S OLDEST CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES

John English, 92, Father of Marion Woman, Passes Away at Home in Galion.

GALION, April 4—John English, 92, the oldest Civil war veteran of the city and the oldest member in Ohio of the Sons of Veterans, died Sunday afternoon at his home. He had been in ill health for the last five weeks.

Mr. English was born April 9, 1840, in Johnsville, the son of Samuel and Sarah (Hall) English. He enlisted from Crawford county as a private in Company D, 23rd regiment, Ohio Volunteers in 1862 and was honorably discharged March 3, 1865 at Frederick City, Md. His company was noted for having been under so many noted leaders, among them Rutherford B. Hayes and William McKinley, who were later presidents.

Mr. English took part in the battles of South Mountain and Antietam, Md. At South Mountain he was* founded and fell into the rebels' hands but was not taken a prisoner. In the battle of Antietam on Sept. 17, 1862, he lost his right leg, and was on the battlefield 43 hours without attention, later lying in a hospital at Cold Spring, Md. for three months.

His first marriage to Maria E. Noblet at Galion took place Nov. 17, 1870. She died Feb. 26, 1881. He was married the second time July 25, 1881, to Mary C. West at Galion, who lived until Jan. 12, 1906.

Mr. English was a member of Dick Morris Post, G. A. R. At the time of his death he was senior vice commander. He was also a member of the Sons of Veterans, an honorary member of the Daughters of Veterans.

For a number of years, Mr. English was a watchman at the Big Four and Erie crossing, and for 16 years he owned a confectionery store.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. C. E. Burgener of Marion, one sister, Mrs. Mary Park, and a niece, Mrs. Ida Walters, both making their home with him.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the home. Rev. W. N. Robertson will officiate and burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

HOOVER ASKS UNITY IN ECONOMY PLAN

ernmental bureaus could the end be obtained.

Robinson Takes Exceptions

Hardly had reading of the message been completed in the senate before Senator Robinson the Democratic leader, condemned the President for "shirking his own responsibility."

He asked "why does not the President now suggest how reductions may be made?"

"Why does he shirk the responsibility that is upon him? It may be necessary to create a commission but ordinarily commissions are a mere way of postponing decisive action.

"This is an exceptional suggestion by the executive authority. It is the duty of the executive to prepare and submit the budget. It is likewise the duty of the executive to make suggestions for raising the revenue to meet the burden of the budget."

"I think the President, when it was discovered that the budget was in error, that estimates were at variance to the extent of $500,000,000, should have withdrawn the budget and submitted a revised budget and estimates," Robinson continued.

"This proposition is to convert congress into a budget-making establishment—to shift from the executive the responsibility that faily falls there. Instead of making the recommendations necessary, he asks for a mixed commission to perform the duties that are his."

REVIVAL SERVICES WILL BE CONTINUED

Revival meetings at the First Pilgrim Holiness church will continue another week, Rev. F. W. Cox, pastor, announced today. The church was filled to capacity for three services yesterday.

Twenty-three members were added to the church roster. Approximately 125 persons were given communion. To date, the number who have answered the altar call is about 349.

An audience of approximately 500 was present last night to hear Rev. W. A. Lockwood, the evangelist, deliver a sermon on the words, "And be sure your sin will find you out." His son, Edward, who is visiting here, read the scripture lesson Sunday afternoon.

Colored People's Group Sends Two to Session.

E. A. Ross, president of the Marion branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Mrs. Dorothy Crowder, secretary, attended a state conference yesterday in Columbus. They attended as delegates from the Marion branch.

Adequate unemployment relief for Ohio Negroes were demanded by the delegates of the 25 branches represented.

"In this distressing era the Negro's condition is so tragic that it is not surprising that he had begun to question whether democratic government has anything further to offer him," resolutions adopted at the conference read.

The conference asked Director John McSweeney to "obtain the assistance of a competent committee of educators with a thorough knowledge of vocational education for the purpose of modernizing the program now provided for inmates at various state institutions.

Alpha Class Meets.

Bible Federation Will Drive for New Members

To further acquaint the men of Marion with the purposes of the Men's Religious Federation, a copy of the constitution will be sent to every men's class in the city and each minister will be sent a letter asking his support of the federation.

The action to interest every man in Marion was taken at a meeting yesterday afternoon at Wesley M. E. church. Approximately 100 men were present.

The letters of explanation and copies of the constitution will precede a drive for membership, W. P. Cass, president, said today. The drive will get under way as soon as the purpose of the federation is clear to every man in all Bible classes of the city, he said.

Envoy Frank C. Berry of the Salvation Army gave the address of the afternoon in the absence of Rev. F. C. Mitchell, prison evangelist, who was called from the city. Mr. Berry spoke on the subject, "Am I My Brothers' Keeper." He also gave his personal experiences of his travels in the Holy Land.

Mr. Cass presided yesterday. A song service was led by Merle Lashey, with N. J. Reimar at the piano. Rev. H. R. Allegood led in prayer. The first Sunday of each month was set aside as the regular meeting date of the federation. Ministers will be asked to keep the date open.

The Wesley quartet, composed of Howard Orr, first tenor, Mr. Lashey, second tenor, Dale Trowbridge, first bass, and George Barroughs, second bass, sang several songs. Rev. Karl W. Patow of the Prospect Street M. E. church pronounced the benediction.

A speaker will be obtained for the next meeting, May 1.

PLANS COURSE FOR TRAINING LEADERS

Findlay Man Meets with Church Workers After Addressing Ministers.

The possibility of a recreational leadership training class in Marion, was advanced this morning after an address by Ernest T. Manchester of Findlay, before a meeting at City library of the Marion County Ministerial association.

Following his address, in which he urged the churches to step into the large gap of leisure hours which every person has today with a recreational leadership program of merit, Mr. Manchester met at the Y. M. C. A. with a group of young people to discuss the organization of a class.

J. W. Richards, Miss Grace Koenig and Miss Freda Wintringham met with Mr. Manchester and planned to invite young people from all the churches in the city to meet with him Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the Y.

Mr. Manchester will explain the course he has to offer and will register those people who desire to train for the work in their own churches. He will stage a demonstration of what such an activity in the church could do for the young people.

He talked before the Ministerial association on the subject, "Does Play Have a Place in Religious Education?"

Falls on Stairway.

A man who hospital attaches said was intoxicated and unable to give his name, was taken to the City hospital early this afternoon after he had fallen down the stairs at the Abel pool room in the basement of the National City Bank & Trust Co. building. The prohibition board of strategy is sending out circulars stressing the effect which a wet president might have on prohibition. Isn't that a bit dangerous to the dry cause? It may put something into the heads of the voters.

Nine states have already approved the "lame duck" amendment, Maine having swung into line last week. One of these days the "lame ducks" may begin to suspect that the public couldn't love them much less were they fat men.

A call for a statewide conference to consider constitutional amendments for sweeping changes in the organization of county governments in Ohio has been issued by the county, local and school government committees of the Ohio chamber of commerce for April 12 in Columbus. The conference may not get anywhere, but if about five out of every six county governments were abolished it would work to make a marked cut in the tax burden. The present system is a relic of the ox-yoke and two-horse-wagon days. It's archaic in the day of the automobile and the airplane.

Thieves who stole several jugs of embalming fluid from an undertaking establishment in Warsaw, Indiana, left the stuff in a nearby ditch with a note admitting that the joke was on them. It probably didn't smell just right to them.

When the villain began to choke the heroine in "When Blood Runs Cold," being put on by home talent in Canyon City, British Columbia, the hero was expected to rush from the wings to her rescue, but her pet collie beat him to it, and put up such a realistic act of chewing up the villain that the audience saw the entire company engaged in trying to pull off the dog before the curtain could be rung down. It was the unanimous opinion that the volunteer actor was the best in the cast.

The disarmament conference doesn't seem to be making much progress, but meanwhile the British have perfected a new projectile which will pierce twelve inches of the hardest and toughest armor plate as yet invented at a range of ten miles. A projectile such as that certainly could do things to a world treaty.

In an appeal for the abolition of the United States shipping board, on the ground that the present merchant marine set-up is expensive and impossible from the point of view of either efficiency or economy, President Hoover sets out that the government expends about $100,000,000 annually on the merchant marine, much of the expenditure being by a board over which there isn't any executive control. Comparatively speaking, Muscle Shoals isn't so much of a white elephant after all.

Killed by Consideration.

It appears more and more that over hope for active participation in the World court by the United States will be erected a tombstone with this terse inscription. "Killed in Committee." For fifteen months protocols signed by the United States and nations adhering to the court have been in the senate committee on foreign relations. Senator Walsh, of Montana, leader of the fight for adherence, has been administering oxygen to them, but day by day they languish closer and closer to the quiet death of a committee room murder.

Senator Pittman, of Nevada, who occupied space in the Congressional Record of March 29 to tell his constituents his attitude on the court, contributed certain pertinent information of general interest.

The question at issue before the foreign relations committee concerns the surety of this nation's protection against advisory opinions on matters involving the United States and which the United States does not want delivered. It is the issue of the senate's famous fifth reservation all over again, briefly.

Secretary of State Stimson and former Senator Elihu Root, who participated in the framing of the Root protocol for adherence to the court, are of the opinion that the United States is fully protected. Members of the foreign relations committee are not of that opinion. They have amended the protocol, therefore, by including the original fifth reservation, which is not acceptable to other signatories. All parties are against a stone wall, unless the other signatories indorse the opinion of the senate committee. That is improbable; there is not likely to be any action in this session of congress. On a quiet day opponents of adherence almost can hear the pneumatic chisels of the monument men chattering as they chip out the inscription: "Killed in Committee." The United States hasn't been very kind to the World court.

The Great Invisible Force.

Public opinion is, at the same time, the most powerful and least tangible factor of control in a representative government. It is the voice of the people, but a voice that only whispers and then, often, in syllables that defy interpretation. A mocking echo, it defies permanent recording as successfully as it defies guidance.

One of the certainties of its course is a tendency, productive of no end of trouble, to follow a pendulum movement—to swing from one extreme to another through intermediate space where it can not safely be said to be either here or there. In other words, approximations of its position can be made only as it approaches its extremes.

It is approaching an extreme now. Rather it should be said that public opinions on many issues have been forced to various extremes by the agitation of a difficult period. It would be impossible to catalogue the registrations of all, a few are more interesting, and perhaps more important than the rest.

It is apparent, for instance, that there is being at present a reaction from slanderous personal attacks on the President. Mr. Hoover's enemies, by indulging overly much in snarling, jeering thrusts in which he was blamed for almost everything under the sun, have made a martyr of him. The inevitable result is making itself evident in many quarters; he is stronger because he has withstood abuse successfully.

In another quarter there is a strongly positive reaction from excessive expenditures by governmental agencies. Swinging away from huge increases in the distribution of public money by all divisions of government, public opinion is approaching another extremity at which it will demand economy at any cost. In local and state government its demands have forced action. Nationally, there has been no action yet, but there will have to be unless public opinion is to be flaunted by servants turned masters by the illusion of power.

The attitude on international relations has been shifting from one of idealism to reality. There is less worry about the cage in which the dove of peace is to be kept and more concern with the young war eagles hatched by the heat of eternal friction between nations.

Similar to this movement in the direction of realistic diplomacy is another in the direction of realistic economics. The latter is the natural reaction from a spree in which a wealthy nation laid its common sense on the shelf and fondly imagined that it could continue to defy economic laws indefinitely. The headache with which it is paying for the fun is painful, but it is helping to teach a lesson half a decade overdue.

Other reactions both obvious and important are those swinging public opinion away from the threat of bureaucracy, the danger of constantly mounting tax levels, the folly of government control of public morals, the misuse of capital and the confusion of complex social restrictions. There are many who seek to condone the economic recession by anticipating the good that will come from it. Their optimism is justified by these and other important trends of public opinion away from the extremes at which the United States encountered nothing but trouble. A saner outlook and method of action should follow in the course of time.

While the government has been forced to put hundreds of millions of dollars of paper money into circulation to meet the demands of the hoarders, two-dollar bills with their "ears" torn off to take away the "curse" have been flowing back into the treasury faster than they can be replaced. What a strangle hold superstition can get on humanity!

Professor William Patten, of Dartmouth college, reports the finding of the "missing link" in a five-inch skeleton found in the rocks of the Baltic sea in deposits from 500,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 years old. It seems that every time the scientists make a discovery these days, they insist on adding a few hundred million years to the age of Mother Earth. It is hardly gallant.

The Jobless Married Men's club of Calgary, Canada, wants beer parlors and liquor stores closed till times are better. Any way you look at the thing, there's something decidedly out of the ordinary in a request like that.

R. Stephen Williams says that "the ideal critic is an artist working with ideas other men have expressed about life." Mr. Williams might have hit the thing off a bit closer had he substituted "average" for "ideal."

Joseph Caillaux, former premier and minister of finance of France, says that, even were the war debts cancelled, that would not solve the present economic problem so long as tariffs stand, and he sees no chance of the reestablishment of free trade. Machines have increased unemployment, he holds, and caused overproduction, and the only answer he sees, with Russia and much of China closed to the outside world's exports, is the development of new trade in Africa. Anyway, while this isn't any solution of unemployment, it knocks big, jagged holes in the argument of the war debt cancellationists over there and elsewhere.

Representatives of theaters, motion picture houses and other amusement places in France and her colonies have called a twenty-four-hour strike for tomorrow in protest to what they claim is unduly high taxation. From this we take it that all the tax-eating is not confined within our own borders. As a matter of fact, they may be found in practically every land of every clime.

Within three weeks of the date of his nonpolitical selection to replace the five-man-board of Cook county, Illinois, the new tax assessor lopped off 410 members of the assessing staff of 500 which functioned under the old regime, and Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, is so enthused over the showing being made by experts that he predicts that the Windy City will be out of the red by next August. Possibly the mayor is a bit optimistic, but like economies worked all along the line in municipal government would soon put every municipality upon its financial feet.

CURBING THE SENATE.

Newton D. Baker's proposal for a constitutional amendment requiring a ratification of treaties by consent of a majority in both houses of congress, instead of a two-thirds vote of the senate alone, is worth serious attention. To be sure, amendments to the Constitution are a tedious and usually futile problem. But the part the senate has played in our foreign policy is manifestly unsatisfactory and something ought to be done in the way of revision.

The senate was conceived by the founding fathers as a small group of hand-picked men, closeted frequently with the president, advising him and checking his acts, somewhat as the cabinet now functions in practice. But the senate today is a raucous gathering of ninety-six political figures, most of them strongly partisans, all of them jealous of the executive power.

By requiring a two-thirds approval, the Constitution reduces the presidency and the state departments almost to impotence. The Versailles treaty was defeated by the grim determination of two or three narrow-minded senators, using all the obstructionist tactics and covert maneuverings possible. The ratification of the World court protocols, while perhaps not important, has been delayed for a decade, against the will of three presidents and secretaries of state and the popular will of the people.

Much the same has been true of the senate's interference in foreign policy on many other matters. It is utterly impossible for Mr. Stimson to chart a course in foreign relations and hold to it, because his policies are the football of politics on the floor of the senate. No other government on earth has such a barrier against treaty ratification.

It is idle to expect prompt results from Mr. Baker's suggestion. But each passing year adds to the evidence supporting his case. Eventually the stultifying power of the senate over foreign relations will have to be curbed, and Baker's plan is the most workable device thus far suggested for doing it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BACK-SEAT DRIVING.

The "back-seat driver" has been the subject of many jokes, but S. Edward Gable, president of the Pennsylvania Motor federation, insists that this type is not a laughing matter. In his opinion, the adage that "two heads are better than one" is undependable in this motor age, when one clear head behind the wheel is far better than two or more trying to control the car from points of disadvantage in the rear or other seats.

Most automobile operators, who have experienced this sort of thing will agree that the back-seat driver "comes in for censure and a word of admonition." The admonition Mr. Gable bestows is:

"If passengers do not feel at ease riding in a car without giving instruction and making suggestions regarding its operation, they should stay at home or use some other means of conveyance in which their suggestions and instructions, if uttered at all, can do no harm."

Yet back-seat driving was upheld last October by the West Virginia supreme court in awarding damages to a passenger for injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The court held that, although the driver of an automobile owes to his guest "reasonable care for his safety," the guest "must exercise reasonable care for his own safety, and when he knows that the driver is not taking proper precautions it becomes the duty of the guest to remonstrate."

Maybe so. But when such a necessity arises, the guest had better get out and walk.—New York Post.

Rickets Cause Most Deformities.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Science has found ways to prevent the marked deformities which were so common in former years. Unfortunately, however, curvatures of the spine, bowed legs and knock legs are still by no means uncommon, and this is particularly true among children in the crowded districts of our larger cities.

Rickets is a chief cause of such deformities. This is known to the doctors as a "deficiency disease," and is due to the lack of certain mineral substances in the blood. Infants after the age of four months and up to the age of two years are commonly affected. The softness of the bones is so great as to cause deformities of the head and of the long bones, especially those of the legs.

The first symptom of rickets in a baby is usually an absence of tone in the skin. This results in profuse sweating, sometimes confined to the head but at times affecting the entire body. The mother notices that the childs pillow is wet after the daily nap, and is at a loss to account for the fact.

Soon the baby becomes restless at night and is irritable, and cries when handled. If these danger signs are neglected the muscles become flabby and the abdomen protuberant, and indigestion, constipation or bronchitis may develop. Weak, thin, flabby children are most frequently the sufferers from rickets, but fat, overweight children are not free from it by any means.

Lack of sunshine is a great factor. A child can not prosper with poor hygienic home conditions, while a diet deficient in vitamins is considered responsible in many cases for these symptoms. The winter season, with its bad weather and absence of sunlight, furnishes by far the larger number of cases.

It used to be claimed that artificially-fed babies were more likely to have rickets than the breast fed. Observation has not borne out this theory.

The prevention of rickets is far easier than its cure. If sunshine is not to be had, one of the sun-lamps will act as an excellent substitute. A treatment at least two or three times a week has proved most helpful to the little patients.

Fresh air and a diet rich in vitamin D are essential to the child's welfare. Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin," is found in milk, orange juice, eggs and codliver oil. The diet of the younger babes should include the vegetable water—the "pot likker." Strained vegetables for the other children are very beneficial.

Codliver oil should be a part of the routine treatment during the winter months. When advised by a physician, viosterol may be substituted.

If a child has rickets or a tendency to it, great care must be exercised to prevent deformities. The bones are soft and easily bent, and for this reason it is unwise to encourage a baby to walk or stand at too early an age. Bear in mind these warnings, because severe deformities, once developed, must be treated by a specialist. They may require braces, or even surgical operations.

Briefly, to avoid rickets give baby sunshine, fresh air and a suitable diet. Consult your physician if baby shows any of the signs of threatened rickets.

Tribute to Washington.

BY THOMAS B. MORGAN

Rome, April 4—UP—The Italian celebration of the bicentenary of the birth of George Washington is far exceeding any similar celebration ever held in Italy for a foreign notable. Streets have been christened throughout the country with the name of America's first president while talk of monuments and other tangible traces of memory is everywhere present.

Prince Lodovico Spada-Potenziani, who as governor of Rome made an official visit to New York several years ago and who has been talked of as the next ambassador to the United States, is the chairman of the celebrations.

Just now a lively discussion is taking place as to whether a monument will be erected here. The committee have disagreed on the question of whether this monument should take the form of a house in which a number of Italo-American activities would be quartered, or of a statue in one of the important squares.

The first idea was to erect a statue, but there was much discussion as to whether this should be equestrian or otherwise. During the long drawn-out battle, the idea of the house came up. The latter suggestion has met with more popular acclaim than the statue. Most of the members of the committee seem inclined to favor the erection of a characteristic building combining Italian and American ideas, in which there would be hospitality for Italian and American cultural activities.

At present, there is a well-equipped American library here, located in the headquarters of the Italo-American society. The Washington house would be designed to be the headquarters of this society and also would become the home of the library. Other activities intended to increase the cultural bonds between Italy and the United States would also form a part of the plan.

The committee on the Washington celebrations have organized lectures throughout the country on the subject of Washington's career. These will treat with all aspects of Washington's life and will be conducted by some of the greatest scholars in Italy. In Rome, a series of lectures will be delivered by such prominent Italians as Senator Carlo Schanzer, former foreign minister; Deputy Emilio Bodrero, former president of the Italy-American society; Count Giuseppe Volpi, former finance minister, and Prince Gelasio Caetani, former Italian ambassador to the United States.

Siege of Fort Meigs at Its Worst.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Probably few soldiers of the World war had more disagreeable or even more dangerous trench fighting experiences than the Ohio troop under General Harrison had in the siege of Fort Meigs on the Maumee in the War of 1812. As soon as General Harrison found that Proctor was planting heavy guns in a position to shell the fort, he put his men to work throwing up a bank of earth across the interior of the fort twelve feet high, at right angles with the fire of the British.

As soon as fire began, General Harrison's men began digging holes down into the base of this embankment for their own protection. This rendered them fairly safe except when a bouncing shell rolled directly into a dugout, in which case there was of course a fearful tragedy. Ammunition being valuable, General Harrison issued a standing offer of a gill of whisky for every cannon-ball picked up by the men and delivered to the magazine keeper, and many a British cannon ball was thus soon hurled back at the men who had fired it.

As they went on day after day, the men became used to the hazard and played cards, slept and joked under the fire. One dare-devil soldier voluntarily took a position on top of the bank where he could see the shots fired at his fort and gave notice, as to the particular portion of the fort toward which the shots were coming, and thus warned the men. Finally one shot was fired that he could not guage because it was coming straight towards him, and he did not realize it until too late and he was blown to fragments.

Later heavy rains came on, and the water, making its way into the trenches which could not be drained, turned the floors to mud and rendered the condition of the men most miserable. At the same time General Proctor moved some of his guns some distance to one side, enabling him to subject the besieged garrison to a raking cross-fire, and the interior of Fort Meigs became a place of misery and terror until the guns of the new British position were silenced by the arrival of Kentucky troops.

Dinner Stories.

"What we need," said the constituent, "is leadership."

"And yet," warned Senator Sorghum, "too many leaders who can't agree on a line of march are liable to spoil the whole parade."

Rival ditto—"Scram yourself! This is my story and I'll stick to it."

"I am looking for an honest man," said Diogenes.

"What do you want with one?"

"Oh, nothing in particular. My real philanthropic purpose is to show the world how to conduct a long and resultless investigation with as little expense as possible."

Wife, as husband is leaving—"Dear, will you remember to bring home something for the rats this evening?"

Hub—"Something for the rats? Certainly not! If the rats can't eat what we have in the house, let them leave."

It got through Kitty's distress that Tubby was trying to help her. She smiled, a little wanly. "Oh, no, Tubby, thanks, I couldn't go. But I'm all right." She let him shut the window behind her. She faced Red as he came out of the bedroom.

"Thanks, Red," she said to him, her head up, her eyes proud.

"He's sound asleep now, Kitty. You won't hear a peep out of him until morning."

Tubby lingered after Red had gone out of the door

The holidays well over. "What price Christmas!" laughed Kitty dolefully, facing a little accumulation of bills which had come in after the first of January. She had put them unopened into a drawer of the buffet. It had been a childish thing to do.

She'd been afraid of a quarrel. Gar always was so difficult when she touched on their finances. And just now she could not bear that any rift should come into the closeness that had grown out of that horrible midnight of Christmas eve.

She ahd lain that night through, uncomfortably curled among the pillows of the divan in the living-room, sleepless, wretched, shamed. Long after a thin streak of cold daylight crept across the room she had fallen into a troubled sleep from which she had wakened to find Gar kneeling beside her. His remorse had been heartbreaking. He had been incoherent, humble, self-debasing, burying his face against her shoulder like a little boy.

"You'll hate me always. You'll never forgive me. I don't deserve to have you forgive me, spoiling your Christmas. I was disgusting. I won't ask you to forgive me."

And she'd found that she could forgive him when he clung to her so, and that such forgiving was sweet.

"It won't happen again, sweet, you'll see. You know what I think of men who can make such beasts of themselves."

She did know. She knew Gar's fastidiousness about his personal appearance. She could believe him when he said it never would happen again.

During the days that followed he had been anxiously devoted, loving, humbly appreciative of her forgiving.

The play had run through the holiday week with great success. Kitty had sat with Gar through the first performance, sharing his nervousness and his satisfaction.

"Now we'll have to get busy on the next play," Gar had said and she had felt no rebellion; his interests were wholly hers.

She frowned down, now, at the envelopes before her; she wouldn't let these bills come between her and Gar.

She knew the exact amount of some of them, Stratton's, for the new evening dress, the milk bill. She glanced over Bond's; she smiled. If Gar would let her buy his clothes for him she'd find just as good somewhere else for less money!

She took up the florist's bill last. Her glance running over its items stopped at the entry of two corsages bought on the same day, December third. Her calculation shot back to that night at the Rainbow Gardens. Gar had sent Marge the orchids. Or, no, he had intended the orchids for her and the flowers she had worn for Marge.

"But it's all right," she said aloud. She put the bill with the others. "Only he must stop sending flowers to any one for awhile."

She considered the total amount of indebtedness, determinedly crowding back the alarm the figures gave her. They'd meet it by living very carefully for the next few months. But Gar must help her in her economies. She'd talk it over with him, tactfully, without any reproaches. She'd wait for his most amiable mood.

He came home that evening, very amiable, but with plans that precluded any talking over of their budget. He'd met Isobel Peters and she wanted them to come over for a game of bridge. Buck Sewell was going to make the fourth.

Kitty liked Isobel Peters and enjoyed bridge. But Gar invariably overbid, scorning any fear of losses.

Tonight he was more reckless than usual. At 1 o'clock he tossed $12 carelessly on the table.

The next morning, while he and Kitty were eating breakfast, he grumbled over what he called his rotten luck. "Let me have a good hand and my partner always holds a bust!"

"Gar, we ought not to play for money."

"We'd look like a couple of nice pikers if we refused!"

"Well, then, let's not play for awhile."

Now, now was the time to talk to Gar about the bills! But not as though she were afraid!

LOGAN, O. April 4—Every cloud has a silver lining and Cyrus Ricketts, Rockbridge farmer, found one in the depression. By catering to town customers who zealously watch for bargains, Ricketts disposed of more farm products last year than ever before, he reports. Now he is seeking city dwellers to build summer homes on his property so that his clientele will be increased.

"Heart of a Wife"

—BY ADELE GARRISON—

Madge and Lillian Plan To Study Marion When She Learns That Charles Owen Is To Be Invited to Party.

LILLIAN'S face and manner were like those of an impudent gamin as she asked Philip Veritzen whether he meant to tell us of his plans for the "revue" he had asked to give at our party, or intended to "dance in, waving his hands and caroling 'Surprise! Surprise!'" The great producer laughed outright at her nonsense, then rose from his chair.

"My dear Lillian," he said indulgently, "You have guessed my intention with your usual clearness of insight. I do intend to surprise you. Later I will come over and consult with you both about a few minor details of management, but the nature of the entertainment I do not wish to divulge until you see it."

"Fine!" Lillian commented. "But remember, old dear, don't have anything that will shock the old folks—Mother Graham, the chief and myself. You couldn't shock the younger ones, no matter what you pulled. If they didn't like 'em they'd pretend to, just to preserve their precious blase attitude."

Lillian Dismisses Veritzen

"My dear," he began again, pompously, but Lillian promptly deflated him.

"Yeah; I'm your dear Lillian," she said, "only don't call me that too often in my husband's hearing. You are such a fascinating devil he might get jealous, and I know that you never have permitted a line in your productions at which an unborn babe could blush.

"So run along and sell your extras. We won't ask any more questions, and we'll be prepared for the thrill of our lives when you spring your surprise."

"Please!" I said a bit tremulously—it was the first time Lillian's volubility had given me a chance to speak—"you mustn't take too much trouble—give us something too elaborate. It will be an imposition." My voice trailed away as I became aware of Lillian's disapproving gaze.

"Don't pay any attention to her, Phil," she said condescendingly. "She is new yet to the 'gimme' game, but she'll be very thrilled and thankful for your little revue. I'll have her in a proper frame of mind by the time you come again."

I faced her a bit stormily when Mr. Veritzen had bowed himself out.

"Why didn't you let me protest?" I asked. "He may be planning something so elaborate that it will cause comment and make Dicky terribly angry."

"Dicky will be terribly angry—for a minute or two, anyway," she said, "but that doesn't mean anything. If he didn't go through his exercises occasionally, he'd never keep those particular emotional muscles limbered up. They'd grow stiff from disuse, and that would never, never do."

Her face was so lugubrious as she finished that I laughed, as she intended me to do, and she dropped her bantering tone and spoke briskly.

"As for Phil's staging anything too elaborate, don't you know the greatest producer of his time any better than that?" she asked. "True, he's a bit flamboyant in speech and mannerisms now and then, but he has the most exquisite sense of proportion in his stage effects of anybody, bar none. Whatever he brings will fit in perfectly with your party as planned.

"You lucky girl! One man taking all the men-guests and family to his house for the night, and another providing a revue! And of course they'll both send oodles of flowers. Now if you only had another masculine admirer who was a chef, or could provide one——"

But as, my patience exhausted, I advanced upon her with a sofa pillow, ready to smother further speech, she dodged lightly away from me and finished her sentence from the doorway.

"And a fourth who had an orchestra; or perhaps that's part of Phil's plan."

I threw the pillow, but it hit the door, which she had closed just in time. Two minutes later her voice sounded from the door at the other end of the room.

"Honest! No fooling! I'm through with the persiflage. I want to talk to you seriously. May I come in?"

"Yes, if you'll behave yourself" I told her severely.

What Will Be Her Reaction?

"Never so good a girl as Lil," she caroled as she seated herself opposite me. "It's about the Brixtons and Owen. Will you write or telephone?"

"Telephone," I decided swiftly. "There won't be time to write. I must ask Ronald to get those other Yale boys on long distance and Harry—"

"He'll rustle the cadets for you today," she promised. "But I want you to do one thing for me before you telephone. "Will you?"

"It's already done," I told her affectionately. "Name it."

"You haven't told the young people anything about the party yet, have you?"

I shook my head.

"Then," she said briskly, "will you send for the three girls, Mary, Marion and Carolyn, tell them about the party, and ask Carolyn casually if she thinks her father and mother and 'Uncle Charlie' can come. I want to watch Marion's reaction to the proposal."

Wednesday Last Day To Enter Teams in Softball Loops

LAST MINUTE RUSH LIKELY AS ONLY THREE CLUBS NOW ENTERED

Deadline at 8 P. M.; Several New Combines Expected To Compete.

Three days remain to enter teams in the four city recreation baseball leagues.

With the deadline for getting under the wire rapidly approaching, a general rush for the filing of entries in the quartet of loops is expected to commence today. Up until Saturday night of last week only three teams had filed applications for berths in one of the four circuits. Numerous other combines had taken out entry blanks but only three had returned them with the necessary fee of $15. Lee Street Presbyterians, St. Pauls Lutheran and St. Pauls Episcopal are the three already entered.

A total of 32 berths are open in the four leagues. Almost every season there are more than 32 teams asking permission to compete. The teams which competed the year previous are always given first choice when it comes to awarding posts. It is considered almost certain that several teams which played last season will not be among those present when the umpires yell "PLAY BALL" on the opening date. However, the loss of several teams of last season is not expected to result in any unfilled circuits as a number of organizations who heretofore have not sponsored teams have signified intentions of asking admittance to one of the circuits this summer.

The entry deadline will be reached Wednesday at 8 p. m. The city softball commission will meet at that time in the Y. M. C. A. to line up the leagues for competition. The commission will also complete arrangements for the opening of the city playing schedule and will name the inaugural date. The season is expected to open on Monday, May 9 but the board has as yet taken no official action on that date.

REED, VANGLER IN MAT SHOW FEATURE

One of the largest crowds in the last several weeks is expected tonight at the Steam Shovel gym as Robin Reed, Pacific coast welterweight, climbs into the ring to mix "holts" with Sammy Vangler, sensational little Jewish mat star of Cincinnati. Reed is returning here after a three-months absence and will take part in the two-hour feature bout of the all-star card.

In the semi-final melee tonight, Martin Zikhoff, Hungarian heavyweight, will tackle "Cyclone" Ed Burns of Kansas City. Bru Burns and Zikhoff will go 45 minutes with two falls to win. There will be the usual preliminary match to start at 8:30 p. m.

Anti-Stalling Rule:

It looks like stalling in a basketball game is going to be a decidedly difficult task in the future as the result of the new rule adopted by the national coaches association last Saturday. The rule has yet to be approved by the national rules committee but there is little doubt of its failure to gain the ok of that body.

Suggested by H. G. Olsen, head basketball coach at Ohio State university, the rule forces the team in possession of the ball to cross the center of the floor towards its own target within 10 seconds. In other words no team can retain possession of the ball in back court more than 10 seconds. Failure to advance the ball past the center in the specified time will result in loss of ball out of bonds at the nearest sideline.

The effect this will have on the game is problematical. Only time will tell exactly how it will work out but there is every indication the game will be speeded up. A team cannot "freeze" the ball in back court in an effort to retain possession and protect a slight lead over the opponents. Of course, the rule does not act only in the closing minutes of a game. In recent years more and more teams have been adopting the stalling type of offense as the principal stock in trade. This attack should be largely eliminated now for the short time the ball is allowed in back court spoils that type of offense. From now on when fans lay down their cash at the box office to see a basketball game, they are going to see just that. Instead, as in many cases, of seeing a team toss the ball around under its own basket for two or three minutes and then make a concerted rush for the opponent's basket the fans will see a constant drive for the net on the part of the team in possession of the ball. If that doesn't provide some thrilling moments for basketball fans next winter then the National Coaches association has made a mistake in adopting the rule. However I don't think the association has erred. It looks like a logical rule.

Christians Called.

The Central Christian Sunday school's recreation baseball teams will meet Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the church to organize for the 1932 season. The Christians supported two teams last season, both in the No. 2 church circuit, and both are expected to be back in competition this year. All members of last season's teams and prospective members of this season are urged to be present.

Bohyer Favors Change:

D. N. Bohyer, charge de affaires of basketball at Harding High school, is of the opinion the new non stall rule is a good one. A conversation with Bohyer Sunday afternoon revealed that he thinks the game will be considerably speeded up by the change but that it will not necessarily eliminate stalling. An offense can be worked out very easily, Bohyer says, to evade the rule, but despite this fact, the game is almost certain to be speeded up.

Cards at Even Money:

Even money on the St. Louis Cards to repeat in the National league again this season and six to five odds against the Athletics repeating in the American circuit. Those ladies and gentlemen of the bettor fraternity, are the odds which the New York wise money is laying on the pennant races of the American and National leagues. These figures have been anounced by Jack Doyle, Broadway commissioner, who handles most of the big money wagers. Here is the complete list of odds which New York offers.

The odds are 1 to 4 against the A's finishing second and the Cards 1 to 3. No wagers were offered against either team finishing third.

Doyle offers wagers that the New York Yankees will provide the chief opposition to the A's with Washington third choice and Cleveland fourth. The New York Giants are his second choice in the National league, with Chicago third and Brooklyn fourth.

The Yankees are 9 to 5 to win, 1 to 3 for second, while Washington is 3 to 1 to win and 1 to 2 to place. The Giants are 5 to 2 to win, 1 to 3 for second, and Chicago 3 to 1 and 1 to 2. No money is offered against any of these teams finishing third.

The longest shots are the White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds. Doyle quoted 1000 to 1 against the chances of either to win and 200 to 1 against them finishing third. The White Sox were quoted 300 to 1 for second place and the Reds 400 to 1.

Now there's a good opportunity to give Mr. Hoover's anti hoarding campaign a boost. Dig down in the old sock and put some of your dough on the line at those odds. That'll be putting the money in circulation for all time, at least as far as you're concerned.

31 TEAMS ROLL TONIGHT

United States and Canada Represented at A. B. C. Meet Today.

DETROIT, April 4—Thirty-one cities throughout the United States and Canada, will be represented in the American Bowling Congress tourney tonight.

J. M. Potter Oils of Akron, O., topped the 64 teams carded last night. The Ohio lineup opened with 931, followed with 1,030 and then slipped back to 953, missing a berth among the pace setters.

A terrific bombardment of the matinee card brought about six changes Sunday among the minor event leaders. Hugh Stewart, veteran Cincinnati pinster, stood out as the king pin of the day.

Stewart let loose an attack on the new maples which resulted in a 1,980 all-events aggregate, for the lead.

Lou Levine of Chicago, went into sixth with 1,913, and George Collett of Kalamazoo, took eighth with 1,907.

Jim Wilson and Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, moved into third place in the doubles with 1,311 and "Doc" Ehlke and Gil Zunker, Milwaukee aces, took fourth with 1,306.

Horton Smith Flashes Old-Time Form After Layoff for Injury.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 4—Golf's most celebrated cripple, Horton Smith, isn't satisfied to merely trudge over the road back.

He's galloping back, tossing alibis aside and chasing old man par with old-time flashes of brilliance despite a painful wrist.

The "Joplin Ghost" broke his right arm just above the wrist last December and was forced out of the big winter money tournaments. Even many of his friends feared the injury would forever ruin his scoring punch. Smith remained idle for a little over three months and then tested out his game.

He surprised even himself. Although his wrist pained him severely at times, he toured the Lake Shore club layout at Springfield, Mo., with par flirting scores and then followed through to score a 69, two under par. He then tackled the tougher Hickory Hills course nearby, compiled a fine average of 74. This year he will teach the duffers of the Suburban Oak Park Country club here and get himself in the "pink" until the big summer tournament drives.

ALLISON COPS TITLE IN TEXAS TOURNEY

Vines and Lott Capture Doubles Championship in Houston Meet.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 4—Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., has won the singles championship of the second annual Houston invitation tennis tournament, thereby moving measurably nearer to membership in the United States Davis cup team.

Jake Hess of Rice institute fell before the dashing net work and almost flawless volleying of the former University of Texas ace, 8-6, 6-3, 6-2, in the finals yesterday.

The doubles championship went to Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles national singles champion, and George Lott of Chicago.

They took on Allison and J. Gilbert Hall of New York after the singles match and won 5-7, 6-1, 7-9, 6-1, 7-5.

Vines, seeded No. 1 in the tournament, was eliminated from the singles competition in his first match. He and Lott rank as the country's No. 1 and 2 players. Vines found his backhand recalcitrant.

In the junior singles finals Frankie Parker of New Orleans easily defeated George Dulling of San Antonio, 6-0, 6-0.

STANLEY CUP PLAY TO START TUESDAY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 4—After two weeks of preliminary gestures, and a whole season of preparation, the final series for the Stanley cup, historic emblem of the world's professional hockey championship, is to get under way tomorrow with the Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers as the contestants.

The two survivors of the long round of preliminary playoffs will play the best three out of five games. The first will take place at New York tomorrow night, the second at Boston chosen for the Rangers' "home ice" when Madison Square Garden was found unavailable Thursday and the rest at Toronto beginning Saturday.

Around the Training Camps

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 4—Dazzy Vance of the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped the Cleveland Indians dead for four innings yesterday, but the Tribe won the game from his successor, Babe Phelps, 3 to 2. Vance struck out seven.

Wesley Ferrell went the full route for the Indians and was effective in the pinches.

It was the last game scheduled for the Indians in their training camp. They probably will start north Thursday, to play the Reds at Cincinnati over the week end.

KANSAS CITY—Larceny of bases, the Detroit Tigers have discovered, is Rife in the American Association. Yesterday they watched the Kansas City Blues steal three bases in the eighth inning of an exhibition game which the Blues won, 6 to 5. It was their second straight victory over the major leaguers.

MEMPHIS Manager Lew Fonseca's White Sox pitching staff is proceeding full steam ahead. In two successive games, his pitchers have yielded but a grand total of six hits. "Bump" Hadley and Vic Frasier turned in a three-hit act between them yesterday as the White Sox defeated the Little Rock, Ark., Travelers, 1 to 0, before shoving off for Memphis for an exhibition with the Chicks.

LOS ANGELES—The Cubs said goodbye to California today, leaving behind a record of 15 victories and 10 defeats. Five of the defeats were administered by the New York Giants in eight games, three by the Pittsburgh Pirates, one at the hands of the Detroit Tigers and another by the Missions.

SAN FRANCISCO—Their spring training program completed the New York Giants were enroute east today. Their next stop is at Kansas City, where they are to meet the Detroit Tigers Wednesday.

JERSEY CITY — Manager Shano Collins of the Red Sox hopes his men will continue the batting streak that has marked the trip north. Earl Webb has hit safely 10 times out of his last dozen times at bat, McManus has been cracking out doubles and Rothrock, despite his charley horse, has been enjoying his best showing of the spring.

PHILADELPHIA Humbled under an 8 to 4 count by the Phillies in the city series opener Saturday, the Athletics heartened themselves yesterday by traveling to Newark to defeat Al Mamaux' Bears, 4-2. The five-game city series, for the championship of Philadelphia, will be renewed today.

LOUISVILLE—The Yankees have just about given up the job of trying to figure out what this fellow Lyn Lary will do next. At third base at the start of the training season Lary immediately began to look like a star. Then his hitting began to slump and he was dropped to eighth place and he replied to that change yesterday by slamming out two doubles and a triple.

• • •

ST. PETERSBURG — The 27 players who comprise the 1932 Boston Braves hit the trail northward today. The first game of the trip is scheduled for tomorrow at Richmond, Va., where they meet the Richmond club of the Eastern league.

TWO STAR EUROPEAN RUNNERS INELIGIBLE FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Paavo Nurmi Latest One Barred; Frenchman Recently Declared Professional.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 4—Within a month, charges of professionalism have been levelled at two of Europe's greatest runners, Paava Nurmi of Finland and Jules Ladoumegue of France. Neither, in all probability, will be eligible to compete in the Olympics at Los Angeles this summer.

Ladoumegue's name was stricken from the rolls of the French Amateur Athletic federation March 4, and yesterday, at [illegible] the International Amateur Athletic federation suspended Nurmi.

The action against Nurmi was taken pending the result of an investigation into the famed Finn's amateur status, now being undertaken by the Finnish Athletic association.

Details of the charges against Nurmi never have been divulged. It was said, however, that the evidence against the great distance runner was so strong that the suspension was inevitable.

Ladoumegue's case also came before the international body, the French delegation submitting evidence to justify its action in striking his name from the rolls. So far as Ladoumegue is concerned his only chance of competing at Los Angeles, lies in his unlikely reinstatement by the French federation before the Olympics begin. The charge against Ladoumegue was that he received payment in disguised form, for competitive appearances.

STOCKS SLIDE STILL LOWER

[illegible]es and Rails Lead General Downturn of Big Board Issues.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 4—The stock market began the new week by [illegible] further into new low [illegible] day.

[illegible] and rails were again [illegible] weak, as selling [illegible] substantial volume in the earlier hours of trading. News of a character to influence the market was meagre, but sharp declines in the bond market, and a further slump in the price of stock exchange seat, were presumably unsettling to stocks.

Among shares dropping 2 to more than 4 points to new lows for the bear cycle were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake Corp., Delaware & Hudson, American Water Works, Pacific Gas & Electric, Western Union, Eastman, National Biscuit, Loews, Macy and McKeesport. Other issues off 2 or more included American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, and Brooklyn Manhattan Transit. U. S. Steel sagged more than a point, and General Motors and General Electric eased fractionally to new bottom prices. Auburn again dropped several points.

Stock exchange seats, which sold as high as $155,000 in March, dropped to the lowest price since 1924, at $87,000. There was a tendency in several quarters to attribute the drop in seat prices to the proposed federal tax on stock transfers. Stock exchange seats at the lowest price since 1924, with prices of industrial shares around the levels of that year, would not seem unduly low if it were not for the large increase in the amount of listed stock since that time, and the growth of common stock ownership. Another factor, of course, is that the number of seats has been increased by 25 per cent.

What little cheer could be found in Wall street was attributable largely to the early reports of the public attendance at the special automobile displays opened late last week throughout the country by General Motors and the Ford Motor Co. Automobile production as estimated for the latest week, shows a fair gain, largely attributable to Ford, and some authorities are predicting a fair pickup for the month of April, which should be immediately felt by steel and related industries.

GRAIN PRICES AGAIN HIGHER

Unfavorable Weather Conditions Send Values Upward at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 4—With unfavorable weather continuing in domestic winter wheat territory, grain prices made a fresh advance today after a wavering start. Liverpool reported general improvement of transatlantic demand for wheat, despite larger quantities on ocean passage. Opening unchanged to ⅛ off, wheat later rose all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ lower and subsequently went upgrade.

Aggressive buying that lifted wheat values was largely due to statements from a leading authority that adverse weather southwest had been setting the wheat crop back daily, as each successive dust storm lessened what little moisture was left in the soil. He said crop progress had been delayed to such an extent that it would require fully two weeks of growing weather before plants were tall enough to protect the soil from dust drifting. Other advices asserted there was no longer any doubt but that a wide area west and southwest had become desperately in need of moisture, and that considerable damage had already resulted.

Special notice was taken of reports of bad conditions of wheat crop in the Texas panhandle, especially late sown fields comprising three-fourths of the acreage. Messages at hand said that as a result of persistent drought and recent freezing the plant was weak, and could not stand much further handicap. Nebraska reports asserted it was now plain that abandonment of acreage in that state would be heavy. Stock market weakness, however, led to increased selling of wheat, and at times caused reactions to below Saturday's finish.

Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions were steady, influenced by hog values.

PATTERN 2130

Step-by-Step Instruction Diagrams Given with This Pattern

Here's a smart way to use one of the lovely new warm weather prints, whether it be cotton or silk. The pointed details are interesting and extremely flattering to the figure. We made this frock up in shantung, a tiny geometric red print on a beige ground, and it was lovely worn with a red straw hat, red leather belt and handbag. Equally suitable fabrics are linen, dimity, percale, broadcloth, mesh or wash silk.

Pattern 2130 is obtainable only in sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.
